

Andrew P. Winterstein PhD, LAT

Andrew P. Winterstein is a clinical professor in the Department of Kinesiology at the University of Wisconsin – Madison where he currently serves as the program director of the athletic training professional preparation program. A graduate of the University of Arizona, University of Oregon, and the University of Wisconsin-Madison; Dr. Winterstein has been active in athletic training patient care and educational programming at UW-Madison since 1986.

Dr. Winterstein's academic interests include: emerging technologies and their use in teaching and learning, medical humanities and their application to athletic training education, organizational dynamics, and patient-reported outcome measures following injury. His papers and abstracts have appeared in a variety of athletic training and sports medicine journals and he has been privileged to make numerous professional presentations at the state, regional, national, and international conferences.

He is the author of The Athletic Training Student Primer, co-author with Gary Harrelson and Greg Gardener of Administrative Topics in Athletic Training: Concepts to Practice and co-author with Sharon Clark of The Athletic Trainers Guide to Differential Diagnosis: A Visual Learning Approach.

Dr. Winterstein is active in many aspects of the AT profession. He serves as a reviewer for the Journal of Athletic Training and the Athletic Training Education Journal; is a reviewer and member of the editorial board for Athletic Training and Sports Health Care; and has served on several state, regional, and national committees. Dr. Winterstein has received numerous awards, including the 2016 NATA Most Distinguished Athletic Trainer award, 2008 Great Lakes Athletic Training Association Outstanding Educator Award, 2007 Wisconsin Athletic Trainers' Association Outstanding Educator Award, and the 2006 UW-Madison School of Education Distinguished Service Award. He and his colleagues are three-time winners of the NATA Educational Multimedia Committee award for educational innovations and have been awarded the MERLOT Classics Award for exemplary on-line learning objects.

Andy enjoys fly fishing, fly tying, standup paddling, reading, and writing. He resides in Madison, Wisconsin with his wife, Barb.